NORWAY AND VICINITY

An Item for the Advertiser.

While reading "A Merchant for Forty-two Years," I was reminded of a matter of trade that I had with C. N. Tabbs soon after he came to Norway.

One fall I bought apples, with others he bought mine, agreeing to pay me $2.00 per barrel for same when disposed of. One day while to his store he called me into his office. Said he, "I have sold those apples and I got more for them than I expected and I am going to divide the surplus with you," which he did. It gave me a number of dollars to the good.

It occurred to me that with much better grass could the word "Honorable" be prefixed to the names of such men than to many that bear that honor.

Merle Russell, who is attending the University of Maine, is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Russell.

Theodore Roosevelt Hunt is soliciting for the Norway Grammar School Baseball team. People are responding very well and it is hoped that the team will have a successful season. All the boys in the team are working for this end. They have several schemes to raise the money necessary for their business.

Co. D. Notes.

Court Marshal.

On Monday evening March 30th, Private Percy L. Damsay, South Paris was brought before the summary court officer for absconding himself from his Company without leave from his commanding officer from March 31st 1913 to March 23rd, 1914; also for misconduct and refusal to participate with his company in the annual tour to Augusta from August 4 to 13.

He was moreover charged in failing and neglecting to appear at the time and place appointed for the State inspection by his commanding officer after being especially ordered to appear at the place and time specified for inspection which was at Norway, March 23, 1914. He not only neglected to obey the orders of the commanding officer but willfully refused to attempt to make any arrangements with his superior officers whereby he might be excused. To all of these charges he was found guilty and was sentenced to pay a fine of $9.00 and to be dishonorably discharged when the said fine was paid.

Private Jesse E. Stiles has been recommended for appointment as Corporal after April 6.

1st Sergeant, Henry G. Fleming has been appointed Company D, 1st Corporal of the 3rd military division.

The commanding officers are endeavoring to make some arrangements whereby a telephone system will be installed on the local military division. The necessity of installing a telephone is greatly enhanced by the adoption of the new Smallarms Fire Regulation which necessitates the firing about three times the usual number of distances with different target; the number of shots to be fired and time limit at each range.

The war department have arranged for the joint manoeuvres of the regular army and organized militia for the coming season. Company D, as a part of the 3rd military division, will participate in the 3rd military division.

The camp is to be at some point in Massachusetts and is to be selected by the department commander and such portions of the organized militia of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, and Connecticut as may be agreed upon by the department commander and State authorities.

The Comptroller of the treasury has rendered a decision which will prevent the payment of members of the organized militia participating in target practice.

This decision means that in the future the states will have to bear the whole expense involved wherever any regiment or state rifle team participate in any interstate or national target competition.

If this decision is insisted upon and remains unrevoked a great blow will be dealt to rifle shooting throughout the country.

W. R. C. Notes.

Mrs. Alta Sheen and Mrs. Eva Fogg entertained the W. R. C. of Norway, at the home of the former on Friday afternoon, March 27. Those present were Mrs. Clara Elliott, Mrs. Addie Lovejoy, Mrs. Jennie Richardson, Mrs. Alice L. Nash and Berenice Nash.

After the work on the books was completed, with Miss Nash at the piano a very pleasing selection was given while the committee and invited friends marched to the dining-room where a light lunch was enjoyed.

Each place at the table was made more attractive by being set up with a colored doily design, showing a marked contrast to the white linen lunch cloth. Napkins to match were used. The lunch consisted of coffee, sandwiches, coconut, and fruit.

After the conclusion of the lunch all adjourned to the living room when an hour was devoted to listening to piano solos, also songs, by Miss Nash.

5:30 o'clock the party departed, counting this as one of the pleasant meetings of the auditing committee.

The W. R. C. No. 45, of Norway will hold a sale at the Woodmen's hall over Stone's drug store on Friday afternoon and evening, April 4th.

Elliott, chairman; variety table, Mary McAllister, chairman; hand table, L. E. Sheen, chairman. A free entertainment will be given during the evening. This will be conducted by Berenice Nash and Gladys Edwards.

The Norway and Watford school committee held a meeting recently and organized. William F. Jones was chosen chairman and L. H. Trufant, secretary. True C. Morrill was chosen superintendent of the district for another year.

It was also voted not to include the Newham district as it was thought the amount of work now being done was all that could be profitably done by one superintendent.

The picture of Prof. George R. Howe is on exhibition in the window of Z. L. Merchants Co's. Dry Goods store. The picture is real color work and was made by Mrs. T. M. Mundy, the artist, who has her studio at the rear of Masonic hall. The picture is a fine likeness of Mr. Howe. There is also a small picture on exhibition, a gum-by-camera, a photographic reproduction made by Miss Libby, the photographer.

The supper and entertainment given by the Ladies' Circle of the Congregational church which was held at the Grange Hall, Thursday evening, was largely attended. A fine baked bean and pastry supper was served, followed by music, readings and a debate. Many interesting points were brought out in the debate which was upon the subject as to whether the villages of South Paris and Norway would be benefited by a Lyndonville dam.

At the close, the "president," Howard D. Smith threw the question open and had the audience decide and the vote was in the negative. Reading of the paper, the Journal, Albert J. Lewis, and Nellie Andrews, played very interesting take-up in many local hits, past, present and future, and letters from absent members of the old lyceum.

Now that the frost is coming out of the ground there are many places caving in where the sewer was put in. Those driving teams should be careful and keep off that portion of the road where the sewer was put in. As soon as those holes are detected they are immediately fixed, but there is more or less danger from new places.

Springtime.

Ah, first and best of all is Springtime. The first flit of the bluebird's wing. When frail sweet flowers peep forth and coyly. When the lark rises to sing. When velvet greenward on the meadows. And first pale tints on bush and tree. All hail to the springtime offering. Awake to life the bird and bee. Bringing great promises of plenty. More generous than regal winter holds. And further on in Spring's glory. The more its life and joy unfold. Autumn is good in all her bounties. Yielding rich gifts on every hand. But sweeter, more sublime and tender. When springtime blossoms of the land. Yes, sweet in all of nature's springtime. The peep of frog, the song of bird and bee. And myriad sounds awaking sweetest memories. Of all we hoped and all we yearned to be. JENNIE E. SNOW KIMBALL.

One Man's Idea.

The board of trade of Maine is trying to do a noble thing; will they do any good?

The large majority of farmers in our state suffer on account of high rates of interest or no money at all. That being a fact, young men hesitate and are afraid to venture into the farm. Little money to start farming, knowing full well they get where they have to hire, they will be left in the hands of the money-lending sharks.

Why are they obliged to be bled by money lenders? I had observed that if a few farmers need a little money to help raise crops, buy a few cattle to eat the grass in the abandoned pastures that are growing up to bushes, while the farms are running out for need of dressing; if I say a few saws and a few shovels, a sign note, every one of them good for all they want in the way of trade with the traders in their own town—and would be in a bank managed by business men in their welfare of the community, which they live, and the state as well—but for want of a regional county bank or even a money shop, they take the note to a trust company or bank in the same city and ask to have it cashed. It is left to a board of directors, who will instruct the paying teller, who times out of ten to either say "Our people are out of funds today," or that "We don't know about the financial standing of the parties, and as none of them are rated in either Dan's or Braden's or our people can't see their way clear to pass you the money, even at bank rates"; and he could further add (and not draw on his imagination, either), "Go to the money shark or let your old pasture go back into the woods and let the fields and the same. It is not a matter that concerns us."

That has been just the situation in the past. How long it would it continue were it not for an awakened public sentiment created by a public need, and exemplified by the very prominent public men of high standing in the past and present, I leave to the public to judge.

The banking and business interests of the nation anxiously await the crop report every year, to know how and what to do with their business. They look to bank on how the fellows that have had to paddle their own canoes and tow the other fellows along are coming out with their crops and cattle.

If money could be had at four per cent. the producer would make more profit and meat and all kinds of produce would cost less to the consumer; old runout fields and pastures would be reclaimed, buildings repaired, and more taxable property created.

The assessors never fail to see and tax the farmer's improvements, rest assured. The banking and business men are only too glad to get the farmer's money, but they seldom, if ever, do anything to help the farmer. They monopolize our water powers, control our daily newspapers, which too often work against the farmer's interest, if indeed they do not ridicule them.

Editing and publishing an agricultural newspaper in Maine in the past has been about as unprofitable and unpopular as farming.

The boy who has gone to an agricultural fair to exhibit a pair of steers has been ridiculed by fakirs and popcorn vendors and cheap swarms of chattering horses. The farmer with his stock, and the farmer's wife with her butter and poultry have been looked down upon by even the cheapest element of our cities, while the upper crust of city society has not even condescended to look down. To be a farmer has been too often to be considered a Rube, and that means fit for nothing but a farmer.

So it appears to me, as a farmer, 71 years old, that the way to make any improvement in farming from the standpoint of the banks and high finance, a new and more up-to-date set of men and women will have to be exported or deported from the cities and great manufacturing centers to take charge of the farms.

Probably if a new set of farmers are installed on our old runout and worn out farms, to take the place of the old runout farmers, they will need some high-grade cattle to farm from. With the board of trade and city people be willing to treat the new farmers better than the old out-of-date ones have been treated; and take a little money out of the State treasury which the poor farmers were bound so much about how to use by the time in the past, and buy some pure bred bulls and place them in different places for service in the state?

Would the people of the state be benefited by the operation? It rests with all the people of Maine to help better farming in our state, and help make it possible to not leave our fast disappearing farms in the care of the old farmer, his wife and dog.

No amount of conversation will avail to keep some of the best crop on the farm, that is, our boys and girls. The board of trade is entitled to great credit for their efforts, and when all is said, it is up to the whole people of our state to suggest a remedy.—J. M. C. Morrill of Gray, in Maine Farmer.

Important to all Women Readers of This Paper.

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in the healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer a great deal with pain in the back, bearing-down feelings, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

A good kidney medicine, possessing real healing and curative value, should be a blessing to thousands of nervous, over-worked women.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy will do for them. Every reader of this paper, who has not already tried it, by enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores.

White Mountain National Forest.

Government has Acquired 100,000 Acres of the 600,000 Needed.

Slowly but surely the Federal Government is moving to take possession of the land within the limits of the proposed White Mountain National Forest. The Government officials are determined early that they would address their efforts first to the main White Mountain section embracing the highest ranges and mountain masses in the midst of which rise some of the most important tributaries of the Connecticut, the Androscoggin, the Merrimack, and the Saco rivers. That territory reaches from the upper end of the Franconia Mountains and the northern slope of the Presidential range south to the Sandwich range, and from the Maine boundary on the east to the Moosehauke region on the west, including in all about 600,000 acres of mountain forest land.

The Government has acquired or bargained for 105,000 acres of this land already. Practically all of this acreage is "cut-over" land, but there are large patches that are handsomely forested with hardwood trees that the lumberman could not use. There are even some bits of untouched forest, but for the most part this district will need attention in the way of reforestation. Of the 105,000 acres thus bargained for, 80,000 acres are in the northeast quarter of the mountain quadrangle. Here is the Wild River Forest lying east of the Carter-Morish Range, and stretching to the Maine line. It is a tract of about 42,000 acres, and while it has been logged for years, and badly fire-scarred in part, it still bears a lot of splendid timber.

Next in size comes a block of 31,000 acres that covers the northern slope of the Great Range and Mt. Dartmouth, reaching from Gorham north to Intervale and Jackson north to Gorham. This is on the west, a section that has been more highly developed as a summer playground than any other section in the mountain country.

Lying between these two tracts is the Pisham Notch, the eastern gateway through the mountains from Intervale and Jackson north to Gorham. Along this road lie six detached pieces, covering nearly 9,000 acres in all.

The remaining pieces, taken under Governmental control, are widely scattered. At the northern end of the Franconia Notch is a block of 15,000 acres that reaches from near Twin Mountain and Bethel Junction stations south to the lower slopes of Mount Garfield and Mount Hale. Though it runs the branch railway to the Pres. On the southwestern boundary of the region are about 7,000 acres, stretching from the White Mountain Division of the Boston & Maine, where it crosses the divide between the Connecticut and the Pemigewasset Rivers, over the west slopes of Mount Clough and the Mount Moosilauke to within a short distance of the summit of the latter. Add to these areas 6,000 acres that New Hampshire has just acquired as a state forest in the northern end of the Crawford Notch, and the total is reached of two years' work in recovering the White Mountain region for the public.

At the present time the timber experts of the Government have in view the examination of four large tracts which have been offered by one of the big lumber concerns. These pieces cover approximately 90,000 acres. Two of these lie at the southern end of the Franconia Notch, another takes in the northern slope of the Sandwich range, and practically the whole of Mount Moosilauke. The third covers the bulk of Mount Washington, and reaches south along the Montalban ridge to the southern end of the Crawford Notch at Bemis. Work in Franconia Notch has already begun, but nothing will be done about examining the lands around Mount Washington until Spring is well opened.

Know Paint.

There's a paint education in this advertisement.

Buy by the job, not gallon. Buy by paint put-on; that's the job.

The price of paint is so much a gallon; that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing.

The price of painting is so much a day; that can't be helped; but amounts to nothing.

Put them together. How can you do it. You've got to lose perhaps half of your money.

Devoe, 10 gallons enough for this average job; an average paint, 15. Now reckon your costs. Count labor—a day for a gallon. Devoe 10 days; the other 15.

Devoe about $50; the average paint about $70 or $80; the dealer the labor the bigger the difference, always that way.

But that's for the job. How long is it going to last? One twice as long as the other.

Heart Training

Through Dumb Animals.

It is an established fact that the training of the intellect alone is not sufficient. Nothing in this world can be truer than that the education of the head, without the training of the heart, simply increases one's power for evil, while the education of the heart, along with the head, increases one's power for good, and this, indeed, is the true education.

Clearly we must begin with the child. The lessons learned in childhood are the last to be forgotten. The potter moulds the clay only when it is soft; in a little while, when it begins to harden, he has no more power over it. So it is with the child. The first principles of conduct instilled into his mind, planted within his heart, take root and grow, and as he grows from childhood to youth, and from youth to manhood, these principles become fixed. They exert their influence. Scarcely any power in existence can unshrink them. They cling to him through life. They decide his destiny. How important, then, that these first principles implanted within the child's heart, be lessons of gentleness, kindness, mercy, love and humanity, and not lessons of hatred, envy, selfishness, and malice! The former make ultimately our esteemed, law-abiding, law-loving citizens; the latter law-breakers and criminals. Upon the training of the children of today depends the condition of our country a generation hence.

In crises against the person the past lessons play the most important part, and this is true, also, even in many crimes against property. How important it is, then, that the child be taught to govern its passions! How important that it be taught to be kind, gentle, loving and humane; and in all the range of human thought there is not a better, wiser, or more expedient way of accomplishing this end than by teaching kindness towards God's lower creatures. If children are thus taught these principles of action which will make them kind and merciful not only to the lower animals, but also toward their fellow-men as they attain to manhood.

Let them be taught that the lower animals are God's creatures, as they themselves are, put here by a common Heavenly Father, each for its own special purpose, and that they have the same right to life and protection. Let them be taught that principle recognizes no nobility of man, that it is only a depraved, debased, and cowardly nature that will injure an inferior, defenseless creature, simply because it is in its power to do so, and that there is no better, no grander test of true bravery and nobility of character than one's treatment of the lower animals.

It is impossible to overestimate the benefits resulting from judicious, humane instruction. The child who has been taught nothing of mercy, nothing of humanity, who has never been brought to realize the claims that animals have upon him for protection and kindness, will grow up to be thoughtless and cruel toward them, and if he is cruel to them that same heart, untouched by kindness and mercy, will be cruel to his fellow men. On the other hand, the child who has been taught to realize the claims that God's lower creatures have upon him, whose heart has been touched by lessons of kindness and mercy, under their sweet influence will grow to be a large-hearted, tender-hearted, manly man. Then let the children be trained, their hands, their intellects, and above all, their hearts. Let them be taught to have pity for the animals that are at our mercy, that cannot protect themselves; that cannot explain their weakness, their pain, or their suffering, and soon this will bring to their recognition that higher law, the moral obligation of man as a superior being to protect and care for the weak and defenseless. Nor will it stop here, for this in turn will lead them to that highest law—man's duty to man.

And so, instead of putting into the hands of the child a gun or any other weapon that may be instrumental in crippling, torturing, or taking the life of even a single animal, I would give him the field-glass and camera, and send him out to be a friend to the animals, to observe and study their characteristics, their habits, to learn from them wonderful lessons that can be learned, and thus have his whole nature expand in admiration and love and care for them, and become thereby the truly manly and princely type of man rather than the careless, callous, brutal type. All feelings that fostered, and the humane sentiments thus inculcated, will return to soften and enrich the child's, and later the man's or the woman's life, a thousand or a million fold; for we must always bear in mind the fact, every business shown, every service done, to either a fellow human being or a so-called dumb fellow-creature, does us more good than the one for whom or that for which we do it.

The joy that comes from this operation of fellowship with all living creatures is something too precious and valuable to be given up when once experienced. To feel and to realize the essential oneness of all life is a step, up which the world is now rapidly coming. Through it life is being broadened and deepened, and even religion is being enriched and vitalized.

Were I an educator, I would endeavor to make my influence along the lines of humane, heart training my chief service to my pupils. The rules and principles and even facts that are taught them will, nine-tenths of them at least, by and-by be forgotten, but by bringing into their lives this "higher influence," at once the root and the flower of all that is worthy of the name "education."

I would give them something that would place them at once in the ranks of the noblest of the race. I would give them not only special attention and time to this humane education, but I would introduce it into and cause it to permeate all of my work. A teacher with a little insight will be able to find opportunities on every hand.

Then, were I a mother, I would infuse this same humane influence into all phases of the child's life and growth. Quietly and indirectly I would make all things speak to him in this language. I would put into his hands books such as "Black Beauty," "Beautiful Joe," and others of kindred nature. I would form in my own village or part of the city, were there not one there already, a Band of Mercy, into which my own and neighbors' children would be called; and thus I would open up another little fountain of humanity for the healing of our troubled times.—(Our Dumb Animals.)

Joseph Andrew's Letters.

On Thursday afternoon, May 8, I bade my friends good bye, with mutual plans to meet again at the World's Fair at San Francisco in 1915, and boarding my train started on the next lap of my journey to Spokane, 389 miles distant, which was to be my next stopping place. This was another all night ride. The daylight portion of my ride was a part of the way through a rough and mountainous country heavily timbered. Saw many of the ravines deep snowdrifts still remained.

We passed through many miles of forest where evidently a few years, before the deadly forest fire had raged and scarce a living tree remained. And judging from the stumps around the ax-man had been there and removed all the valuable timber. At about seven the next morning I arrived at Spokane, the "Queen City" of the "Inland Empire" as it is called, a city of 104,000 population in 1910 and fast growing. I took an electric car to Hilyard, a few miles out, then a walk of two and one-half miles out in the country brought me to the substantial and hospitable home of Samuel Fairchild, one of my old pioneers. Dakota neighbors with whom I had not met for 35 years.

Mr. Fairchild has a pretty size hill farm of about 80 acres, one-half of which is in fruit trees, mostly apples, and small fruit. His handsome farm buildings are on the top of the hill and near the center of the farm in a pretty location. Although past 70 I found him strong and robust and almost as active as a boy.

He sells most of his fruit and vegetables to regular customers in the city. He is prosperous and likes the country well. As he and his wife were Seventh Day Adventists, on Saturday I went with them to church and spent the balance of the day quietly at home.

Sunday I went to Spokane and called on another old pioneer Dakota neighbor, then strolled about the streets of the city and lingered long about the great waterfall in the heart of the city. A great electric power plant at the foot of the falls and large saw mills further up the great Cataract give employment to many men. In the evening I returned to Hilyard, walked a mile out into the country to a schoolhouse where my Advent friends were holding revival services, and after the meeting rode home with them and spent the night.

This part of Washington, which with Oregon, Idaho and the western part of Montana and Wyoming which once constituted the territory of Oregon is historic ground. It was the battle ground of Americans when the Lewis and Clark expedition crossed the continent and laid claim to this vast territory as a part of the United States. Lewiston and Clarkston, two cities not far below Spokane were named in honor of these early explorers.

Not far away is Walla Walla through the heart of which runs the Oregon trail of pioneer days. A little below Walla Walla at Whitman is the old Wallatup mission established by Dr. Marcus Whitman, who was murdered by the Indians in 1848. The story of how Marcus Whitman saved Oregon will be told in song and story as long as the heroic deeds of brave men are recorded.

On Monday morning, May 12, I bade my friends good bye and going to Spokane I boarded the 8:30 train and resumed my journey bound for Beach, 378 miles distant which was to be my last visiting place. At Ervin, 4 miles out, we left the great state of Washington behind and crossed the state line into romantic Idaho, and after a run of 108 miles crossed the Idaho-Montana state line at Cabinet.

From 11 a. m. until Tuesday evening, over thirty hours, our fast express moved swiftly across the great state of Montana over the mountains, through tunnels and along beautiful valleys, until 773 miles had been measured off between the state lines of Idaho and N. D. After crossing the mountains the railroad follows the Yellowstone river for about 350 miles. This is called the Scenic Highway, but I missed most of the grand scenery by passing through in the night. I will skip that portion of my journey.

In sheep raising and mining Montana claims to be ahead of any state in the Union. Agriculture is not neglected and I saw many fine farms as I passed along. There are many large irrigation plants in the valleys, and at Billings there is a two million dollar sugar beet factory which takes care of 20,000 acres of sugar beets each season. Just at the close of the day on Tuesday evening I arrived at Beech, N. D., the first town after crossing the Montana line where I was met by my old pioneer South Dakota friend, Capt. C. F. Nelson and his son, and they took me to their home and royally entertained for the next two days.

Beech is a thrifty well awake little city of about 1,800 population. It is located in a lovely valley which has a rich deep soil and is a fine wheat growing section. Until a few years ago Beech was but a flag station, then the boom came and now there are large general stores, four banks, four lumber yards, two hotels, six restaurants, three drug stores, two bakeries, two large flouring mills and a large complement of stores, churches, school buildings and the like.

The next day my friends took me for a sixty mile auto ride about the valley. There were several families of my South Dakota friends living there and they showed several dooryard calls on them. One of them had 1,100 acres of wheat sown and was not through seeding yet. On Thursday

FOR THE GRIP

Peruna Is Sometimes Used With Good Results

A great many people use Peruna for the grip. Some use it as soon as the grip begins, taking it during the acute stage of the disease, and especially in shortening its course. Many people take it after they have had the grip. Their convalescence is slow. They have suffered along for a month or two, without any signs of complete recovery. Then they resort to Peruna as a tonic, with splendid results.

Mrs. Jane Gift, R. F. D. 1, Athens, Ohio, whose portrait appears above, writes: "I think I would have been dead long ago if it had not been for Peruna. Six years ago I had the grippe very bad. The doctor came to see me every day, but I gradually grew worse. I told my husband I thought I would surely die if I did not get relief soon.

"One day I picked up the newspaper and accidentally found a testimonial of a woman who had been cured of grip by Peruna. I told my husband I wanted to try it. He went directly to the drug store and got a bottle of Peruna. I could see the improvement in a very short time and was soon able to do my work. I continued using it until I was entirely cured."

Mr. Victor Patneade, 323 Madison St., Topeka, Kas., writes: "Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never really recovered my health and strength, but grew weaker every year, until I was unable to work.

"Two years ago I began using Peruna and it built up my strength so that in a couple of months I was able to go to work again. This winter I had another attack of la grippe, but Peruna soon drove it out of my system. My wife and I consider it a household remedy."

Those who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

day morning I bade my kind friends good bye and started for St. Paul, 626 miles distant. I enjoyed an all daylight ride across the broad level prairies of North Dakota a distance of 374 miles. About twenty miles out we passed through Moorhead and after the wife of the Marquis De Moors, a wealthy Frenchman of which we heard so much about some 20 years ago. The now famous "Maltese Cross" ranch upon which Ex-President Roosevelt obtained a good deal of his western experience, is located near here.

We passed through a portion of the Dakota Bad Lands, which I had never seen before. As I have never heard any explanation of what caused these wonderful formations I will quote from my guide book the following, "At Sully Springs and Medora on the Little Missouri River, the tourist reaches the heart of a most remarkable region, commonly spoken of in frontier days as the "bad lands" but which in more recent years has come to be known by the more appropriate name of Pyramid Park.

Rich deposits of lignite coal tell that this was a country of dense forests in the carboniferous age, and evidence of its later conquest by the sea is still found among the fossil remains in Pyramid Park. Petrified stumps also serve as lasting monuments to some of the sturdy monarchs of primeval forest glory. Ages afterwards, the Pine King marked the hindered through this region leaving a veritable park of pyramids, tilted and streaked with various shades of coloring, their sides now curiously worn and graven by the erosion of wind and storm. It is an almost trackless labyrinth of hills and buttes and canyons and bluffs grouped to form a most interesting and suggestive panorama. The peculiar landscape enhanced by the brilliant colors of the exposed strata creates an impression never to be forgotten.

At Mandan we cross the Missouri over a million dollar steel bridge to Bismark the capital city of North Dakota. At Jamestown we cross the James River, which flows south across South Dakota and empties into the Missouri river near Yankton nearly 400 miles distant. As we journey east we pass many great wheat fields and amongst them the noted Delruple farm of 21,000 acres, subdivided into working units of 3500 acres each. At Fargo a city of over 14,000 population, we crossed the Red river of the North into Minneapolis, at Morehead. This river flows northward into Canada. The valley is from 30 to 70 miles wide and 300 miles long and the soil deep and rich. North Dakota ranks high as a spring wheat growing state. Her wheat grades No. 1 hard. The state has many industries besides wheat raising. She raises large crops of flax, oats, barley and considerable corn beside vast numbers of cattle, sheep and horses.

On the 15th of February last I attended the North Dakota annual picnic at East Lake Park, Los Angeles, Cal. It was a regular old fashioned picnic and there was many thousands present. The most conspicuous display made was a large banner mounted over the speakers stand on which was painted in large letters, "North Dakota is a good place to make money in and California is a good place to spend it."

The balance of my ride to St. Paul was in the night and I will skip that part of my trip. Early the next morning my train pulled into Minneapolis then across to St. Paul.

The "Twin Cities," Minneapolis with its population of 301,000 and St. Paul with a population of 214,000 are well worth a week's visit and a write-up, but I had been on the road seven weeks, was tired of travel and sight seeing, and anxious to get home. So I took the first train out over the Chicago and North Western line at 10 a. m., and was soon on my way across the prairies of southwest Minnesota and Northwest Iowa to Alton, Iowa 228 miles distant where I changed cars and after a wait of several hours took a stub train to Hawarden, a station on the Iowa-South Dakota state line a distance of about 35 miles where I again changed cars, and after a wait of daylight Saturday morning. Thus finishing a round trip journey, including side trips of about 6,000 miles, and most of the way over a new route to me.

I enjoyed the sight seeing, but best of all the hunting up and visiting with old friends that I had not seen for many years. After a two weeks visit at the farm, and amongst my home friends I started for Ohio, going by the way of Madison, Wis., and making my fourth annual visit with my old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoard, whom I found enjoying their usual good health and with whom I had a pleasant over Sunday visit. Then came on here to Fairport Harbor, Ohio, where I have remained quietly with my daughter and her family ever since.

The first of March I expect to go back to Hurley, stay a month or two on the farm then come back here, visiting on my way with friends in Iowa and Illinois.

About next blueberry time I may have another attack of "Wander-Lust" fever and if I do may probably be seen about that time wondering over the hills and valleys of Old Oxford County, visiting old time friends and neighbors. And as a side leave feasting upon those luscious berries that like Maine's noblest tree, the pine, spring spontaneous from the rock bound sandy soil.

The Saco Valley Festival Chorus sing in Portland in City Hall with the big organ, Thursday evening, April 2, under the leadership of Llewellyn B. Cain.

There are about 150 voices in the chorus. Mrs. Emily Osgood attained her 84th birthday, March 13. Although the day was stormy a goodly number of friends called throughout the afternoon and Mrs. Osgood was the recipient of various remembrances. Mrs. Osgood's general health is excellent although her sight is impaired by the growth of cataracts. The occasion was made doubly pleasant by the presence of her daughter, Mrs. Carrie Reed of Bridgton, who was spending a few days with her mother. Light refreshments were served by Mrs. Cousins and Mrs. Reed.

Memory.
Memory is the friend of wit, but the treacherous ally of invention; there are many books that owe their success to two things—the good memory of those who write them and the bad memory of those who read them.—Colton.

S. D. Jilison of Oxford went into the alley at Lewiston to fasten his horse, saw the body of a John S. Kingston, aged 30 years of Lewiston on the shafts of a disused wagon. To all appearance, it seems that Kingston, feeling ill, had gone into the alley and seated himself on the shafts to rest, when his heart gave out.

The State Highway Commission for a road convention will be held at the auditorium at Bangor, April 7th and 8th. The program for the days is filled full of instructive subjects by interesting speakers.

By law a contract to be binding must be mutual. How would President Eliot have his profit-sharing plan work in the lean years when the profits were turned into losses? The profits would probably be shared, and a "skio-out" on the losses.

Your libellant further represents that the present residence of her said husband, Ronnevill Williams, is not known to your libellant, and cannot be ascertained by reasonable diligence, which diligence your libellant alleges she has used, but without avail.

Wherefore she prays right and justice and that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony with her said husband may be decreed her.
